The National Incubus.

This time has come when expression of the public conviction of the true character of the individual who now occupies the Presidential office should not be stifled.

When Andrew Johnson was inaugurated Vice-President, he disgraced himself and disgraced the nation. Before the vast and distinguished audience assembled on that occasion, he presented himself to take the oath of office in a condition of beastly intoxication, and proceeded to inflict upon his mortified and indignant hearers an incoherent and maudlin speech.

When Andrew Johnson was inaugurated Vice-President, he disgraced himself and disgraced the nation. Before the vast and distinguished audience assembled on that occasion, he presented himself to take the oath of office in a condition of beastly intoxication, and proceeded to inflict upon his mortified and indignant hearers an incoherent and maudlin speech.

The career thus inauspiciously opened has been a downward one ever since. Its keynote was struck then. The same want of self-control, slavery to passion, disregard of public dignity, and subjection to a low order of influences, then exhibited, have marked Mr. Johnson's whole subsequent career.

Let us look at the opening sentence:—"The Democratic organization, devoted to the maintenance of its immortal principles; conscious of its duty to them and to the republic; proud of its years, its triumphs, and its heroism in disaster, and remembering that in the face of persecution, of official frowns, of corrupt appliances, and of successive defeats, its numbers have steadily increased, again presents to you its candidate for your suffrages."

Secretary Stanton, who was President Lincoln's right arm of strength throughout the Rebellion, whose successful administration of the War Department won the admiration of the whole civilized world, and to whom the American people owe as much as to any other man for the preservation of their Government from overthrow, is suspended from office simply because he has refused to crown a great career with infamy.

But this little narrative of the ordinary routine does not stand alone. In the closing paragraph we have another extraordinary piece of advice to the "unwashed":—"We call upon you to organize in every section of the State. Act for yourselves, promptly and vigorously. Fight for men. The Government you love is in danger. Its great cardinal doctrines are daily attacked, and treason in peace may prove more deadly than treason in war."

Let us look at the opening sentence:—"The Democratic organization, devoted to the maintenance of its immortal principles; conscious of its duty to them and to the republic; proud of its years, its triumphs, and its heroism in disaster, and remembering that in the face of persecution, of official frowns, of corrupt appliances, and of successive defeats, its numbers have steadily increased, again presents to you its candidate for your suffrages."

one, which are marking the conduct of two-thirds of the journals of our land. And when it is remembered that as soon as the nomination is made, all the hard things must be said, and all the favoritism merged into a warm support of the successful competitor, the utter absurdity of pointing out a particular candidate is apparent.

Who would have thought that Mr. Polk would have received the nomination? or who would have settled on Pierce as the nominee in 1852? We can, therefore, deduce from experience one such sensible lesson, which will be our guide throughout the contest which is begun by some of our contemporaries already.

Mr. William A. Wallace, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, is doubtless a pleasant, genial gentleman, but he has mistaken his calling. His lot in life was intended to be cast in pleasant places, and nature has not fitted him for the authorship of political manifestoes.

Let us look at the opening sentence:—"The Democratic organization, devoted to the maintenance of its immortal principles; conscious of its duty to them and to the republic; proud of its years, its triumphs, and its heroism in disaster, and remembering that in the face of persecution, of official frowns, of corrupt appliances, and of successive defeats, its numbers have steadily increased, again presents to you its candidate for your suffrages."

and six cents of the public debt; in 1857 each owned seventy-five dollars and fifty cents thereof. In 1860 the expenses of the Government were sixty-two millions, in 1867 the Treasury estimates at two hundred and twenty-five millions, independent of interest on the debt, both being periods of peace.

Well, we grant that the expenses to-day are much heavier than they were in 1860. It is no new thing. Does Mr. Wallace suppose that the Democracy does not know that fact without his telling them so? But whose fault is it, and what is the remedy proposed? It is the Democracy we have to thank for that increase. It was the Southern wing of the Democratic party that inaugurated the war.

The extremity of this thread he holds between his forefinger and thumb, and as soon as his nearest neighbor takes out his or her portfolio for the purpose of paying the fare—which is paid in Paris on entering the omnibus—the thief, his eyes of course apparently fixed to contemplation on some far-off object, decamps with the fare, or lead into the portfolio as if the owner is closing it. The conscious owner, who never sees the thief, as soon as an opportunity occurs, or is provided by the thief himself, who tumbles apparently from his own pockets, the purse is vented drawn from its own pockets, and transferred to the thief, who, with a polite salutation to the conveyance, and a polite salutation to his victim and the rest of the travellers.

Here is juggling that throws the dexterity of Signor Blitz & Co. into the shade. A fellow who could successfully perform a feat of such delicacy and skill would almost deserve the reward of genius. And if he was caught he would be very likely to get a reward not wholly unlike that which genius too often receives at the hands of an unappreciative community.

A Biography of Maximilian.—A Paris letter reports that M. Debraud de Saldapenna, the Memorial Diplomatique, is left literary executor to Maximilian, and is about to publish a biography of his brief life. M. de Saldapenna had already begun the work before the arrangement of Miramar was concluded, and he has recently received documents which will nearly lead him to the end of the life of the Prince.

Trial of the Rev. S. M. Merrill. The trial of this individual, whose singular conduct has received so large a share of public attention within the last few weeks, before an ecclesiastical tribunal, has just terminated at Plattsburgh. The case was preferred by Brothens O. Gregg, T. De Foris, J. J. Drawa, and B. J. Weaver. The Rev. J. E. Brown, Presiding Elder of the district, had been appointed as the committee on the case the Revs. Andrew Witherspoon, of Clintonville; James M. Egerton, of Levesville; C. S. Hager, of Tarry; B. Wood, N. of Paris; and the Rev. J. M. Weaver, of Plattsburgh. The Rev. M. Wicker, of Champlain, was appointed Secretary. The Rev. Orion Gregg, of Moscow, and T. De Foris, appeared as counsel for the church and prosecution, and the Rev. Mr. Merrill was assisted by the Rev. J. White, of Essex, N. Y. To all of the charges and specifications Mr. Merrill pleaded guilty, except specifications 1, 3, and 6 under charge 3, which he denied; but he declared that he had not now the means to disprove them, or to rebut his testimony on them as might be in the hands of the prosecution, and wished an examination on those points waived until the next annual conference, at which time and place he would meet them. Inasmuch as he had already admitted enough to secure a verdict which was all the penalty this Court had power to inflict, the counsel for the prosecution consented to waive examination on those points. The committee on the case, after having heard and confessed all the charges except as above stated, and had offered to it his credentials as minister, and admitted that his confession demanded his suspension from his ministerial functions and church relations. To give him opportunity of vindication from the denied specifications, the committee decided to suspend as such minister and member of the Church until the next session of the Troy Conference, to be held in Albany in April, 1868. This decision is an end of the case except the ultimate approval of the sentence by the Conference.—N. Y. Tribune.

Coroner's Inquest in Springfield. SPRINGFIELD, Mass., August 13.—The Coroner's jury in the case of Elizabeth Nuttoven, the young woman who died in this city on Saturday night under suspicious circumstances, have returned a verdict that her death was produced by Dr. William H. White, of this city. Dr. White was arraigned to-day before the Police Court, and pleaded not guilty. He was ordered to give $8000 bail, and, failing to procure it, was lodged in jail to await his examination on Thursday.

A NEW MATERIAL. HOT-CAST PORCELAIN. AN ENTIRELY NEW ARTICLE OF MANUFACTURE. AN AMERICAN INVENTION. PATENTED BOTH IN THIS COUNTRY AND IN EUROPE. It contains all the constituent ingredients of Porcelain, but, unlike ordinary porcelain, is worked like glass, and is capable of being formed into any shape into which glass can be blown, pressed, moulded, or drawn. Its strength and durability is superior to the strongest marble; in hardness it equals quartz, of which it is largely composed; in its applications it ranges from the finest china for ladies' dress trunks to the colossal church columns from the thickest egg-shell china to the heavy slab of the sidewalk on which it is placed. It takes the most brilliant and enduring polish, and will not stain, as it will not absorb any liquid whatever. Can be made in any color. Capable of being decorated in gold and silver. Resists the attacks of heat, cold, acids, and other destructive agencies. It is used for all purposes for which Porcelain is generally used, and in many purposes where it is more durable, and in many purposes for which marble is used. Materials not expensive, and of working small—demand unlimited.

IT IS ADAPTED FOR PURPOSES ALMOST UNENUMERABLE. HOUSEHOLD USE. Elegant and durable cups, saucers, mugs, pitchers, plates and dishes for the table—as beautiful as French china, and more durable; vases of every size for use or ornament; bottles, large or small, plain or figured, for medicinal, toilet, or other uses; milk-cans of tinne or glass, and shades for gas-lights or oil lamps; knobs, escutcheons and plates for the doors; wash-basins, and flower-baskets; strong and tasteful flower-pots and flower-baskets. WINDOW PANES. To admit the light, but exclude the glare—cheaper, stronger, and more durable than glass, and more decorative than ground glass. Just will not get on it as both sides are polished. FINE CHINA PLATES. Of superior finish and strength; time not crating the surface, or affecting the color. TILES FOR THE FLOOR. More durable, and more beautiful than the encaustic tiles hitherto in use—and so cheap as to be within everybody's reach.

ARCHITECTURAL. Inside Work—wash-basins and wainscoting, mantels, wash-stands, bath-tubs, fire-grates, brackets, columns, mouldings, and everything of the kind made of marble, or plaster. Outside Work—columns, dressings and sashes for front doors, and shades for windows; cornices; balustrades, steps, sills, door-frames, and iron-work; also everything that can be made in marble, stone, or iron. Absolutely wear-proof. Absorbs no liquid, acid, soil, or other impurity. TOMBSONES. Stainless, and indestructible by time.

HOT-CAST PORCELAIN differs from Porcelain hitherto in use, being made from materials in a state of fusion (as glass is made), instead of being moulded, cold, baked, and subsequently encaustic. It is made with great rapidity, and is, upon being annealed, immediately fit for the market. The cost of the materials is not more than of fine glass. The cost and manner of working are the same.

THE AMERICAN HOT-CAST PORCELAIN COMPANY. Has been organized under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with a Capital Stock of $1,000,000 at $10 per share. The temporary works of the Company are located at Philadelphia, and the public are invited to call and examine for themselves. Every facility will be afforded to all who may desire to satisfy themselves as to the nature and capabilities of the material. Subscriptions to the Stock will be received at the DOCK Street, above Walnut, Philadelphia. A examination will satisfy all judicious business men that the Capital Stock of the Company will be not only a very profitable, but a perfectly safe investment.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS. Charles M. Prevost, John F. Levy, John R. Harton, Joseph Parrish, M. D., George F. Fisher, William L. Schaffer, James G. Hardin, Samuel W. Cates, William Struthers, David L. Dodge, WILLIAM M. WELLS, President, EDWARD J. ALTEMUS, Secretary and Treasurer, WALDRON J. CHEYNEY, Superintendent, EMIL F. DIETRICH, Assistant Superintendent, GEORGE HARDING, Solicitor. 811 44p

Orders, and other communications by mail, addressed to THE AMERICAN HOT-CAST PORCELAIN COMPANY, Nos. 505 and 507 CHESTNUT Street, Philadelphia, Pa., will be promptly answered. A BOILER THAT WILL NOT EXPLODE. A Company is about to be organized to manufacture WIEGAND'S PATENT STEAM GENERATOR. This Boiler has been demonstrated by actual use to be superior to any other for safety and economy. It has been in daily operation for two months at Henderson's Mill, Conestoga street, west of Twenty-first, where practical engineers and machinists are invited to examine it. A Model can be seen at the office of SAMUEL WOOD, N. E. corner THIRD and DOCK Streets, where subscriptions are received for stock. 115
